2nd Annual City of Homestead Summer Youth Employment Program

(Miami, March 28, 2018), CareerSource South Florida (CSSF) and the City of Homestead will launch the 2nd Annual City of Homestead Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP). As a part of this partnership, the City of Homestead will invest $50,000, while, CSSF will invest $100,000 for the program. The SYEP will provide summer youth employment to 86 youth between the ages 15-18.

SYEP will afford opportunities to the youth of the City of Homestead and is designed to provide entry-level positions with local businesses, private sectors, and community-based organizations. The program will begin with a 20 hour work readiness training where youth will be provided job preparation skills such as: resume building, mock interviews, how to complete a job application, financial literacy, life and time management. Participating youth will have the opportunity to meet employers and become familiar with the on-boarding process through hands on experience.

A lottery process will select program participants who have met all program requirements. Participants must reside in the City of Homestead of low-income and/or receives free or reduced lunch.

“Homestead is proud to continue our partnership with Career Source South Florida,” said Homestead Mayor Jeff Porter. Last year, Homestead’s contribution helped Career Source place more than a dozen Homestead students in summer jobs throughout the City—building students’ skills while helping local businesses and organizations thrive.”

“The Summer Youth Employment Program will allow youth to take on new responsibilities, gain on-the-job experience, transferable career readiness skills, and develop essential social skills that will help them achieve success in the future workforce. Offering meaningful employment options and income to our youth is critical to supporting the efforts in the City of Homestead,” said Rick Beasley, Executive Director for CareerSource South Florida.
